The Creation Address

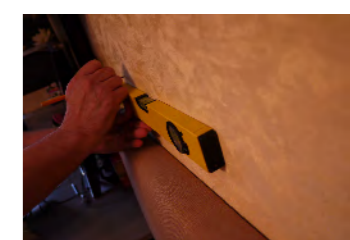

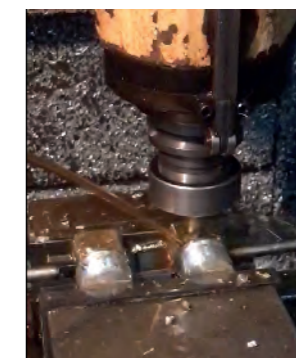

Tinkering Area

It all began in a little workshop that ignited the sparks within Mr. K.K. Toh. The passion that he has poured into his work, altered the course of innovation by incorporating green technology.

For the past 30 years, his creativity and perserverance have been fruitful with the products that he has created in a workshop. The little workshop then harboured him with new thoughts and innovative designs to create an environmental-friendly product. With the tiniest thoughts that turned into ideas, his ideas are being executed and brought out what was intended.

The little workshop then expanded, where more actions could be performed. From research and development, to manufacture, to quality control, these actions were executed from the factory and finally delivered to our users.
